A Student's Best New Vice President Brings Unique

Try to interview Bruce Moore and you're soon talking about yourself. He has a way of asking about your background, your family, your priorities, your values, your interests — and he appears to hang onto your every word. You may find yourself leaving his office in half an hour ... having forgotten what you ever intended to see him about.

That very quality may be what draws students to Bruce Moore ... not the stereotypical characteristic of a college administrator. But, then again, he says there's nothing typical about him.

Need an introduction? He is Gardner-Webb's new vice president and dean for student development, a position he assumed July 17. Don't worry if you haven't heard of him, Moore says, because for the past five years he has worked at the other end of North Carolina at Chowan College.

His arrival at Gardner-Webb, however, results from extenuating circumstances — Moore fills the position held by Jerome Scott before his untimely death in May. Ironically, Moore was well-acquainted with Scott, and the two often attended administrative workshops together over the years as roommates. Moore responds by saying, "I can't be Jerome Scott, but I don't think anyone expects me to be. There are similarities, though, when it comes to wanting the absolute best for young people."

Being a student and working with students has been a constant throughout Moore's career. He earned a bachelor's degree from Campbell University and a master's degree from Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary with an emphasis in Religious Education. He has served with the North Carolina Baptist State Convention; been religious activities director at Campbell; and held the titles of minister of young adults, associate pastor, and minister of youth and college students at several churches.

It's easy to sense that Moore

Friend Style to Gardner-Webb

has no trouble fitting in no matter where his job takes him. What's important, he says, is that he wholeheartedly believes in Christian higher education – whether it's at Chowan, Gardner-Webb, or any other Christian institution. And he often finds rather colorful ways to describe what he means.

"If you don't like Pepsi-Cola, you don't work for Pepsi-Cola," he says. "If I didn't have a passion for schools like Gardner-Webb, I wouldn't be here. At my first staff meeting here, I told those people the same thing. I said we've all chosen to be here, so let's work together for the benefit of our most important resource – the students."

He uses the word "family" often when he describes his staff. He explains, "That's because a family is close-knit; they care deeply for one another and work together like a team. That's what I think it takes to genuinely care about the well-being of our students."

The goal, Moore says, is to give Gardner-Webb students a total and complete college experience. Getting a degree and getting an education can be two very different things, Moore believes. "The world not only needs better workers and laborers, it also needs better people. We can compliment what students learn in the classroom by offering them an exceptional place to live as well as to learn."

Further illustrating his point, Moore recalls the words of an ancient philosopher. "Aristotle talked about the intellectual and moral virtues and how one works so closely with the other. It's the same situation in a college setting. The intellectual virtue will be taken care of in the classroom. But we can also offer the moral virtue, so to speak, outside the classroom so that a student gets the complete benefit of his or her years at Gardner-Webb."

A great deal of what Moore is responsible for directly affects the students, including the supervision of residence life and student activities, campus police and safety, campus ministry and counseling services, health services, student discipline and student government.

Creating an environment that students will embrace means relating to them, listening to them and earning their trust, Moore says.

He quickly adds, however, that working with students doesn't mean catering to all their wishes. "I think they want respect, to be treated fairly, not to be overlooked. A lot of times it means they simply want you to sit there and listen to their complaints."

It means setting aside time for students – maybe the reason Moore admits he doesn't wear a watch. "Many times it's what you don't do that makes a difference. If a kid comes to me wanting to talk about a problem and I'm constantly glancing at the clock, what kind of impression am I giving?"

Academic degrees and professional training can help when you're an administrator, Moore says, but many times it's the School of Hard Knocks that provides the best preparation when dealing with college students.

"I'm a father, and many times I look at how I would want my child treated if he were in a certain situation. Sometimes you go with a gut feeling, and sometimes you make mistakes, but you always do what you think is best for the young person – as a parent or a college administrator."

Moore adds a final "Oh, by the way...". His Student Development staff has adopted its own personal mission statement: Changing the world, one person at a time.

The smile he flashes must mean he's happy with the way that sounds.

The Gardner-Webb Associate Degree in Nursing (ADN) Program learned recently that a perfect 42 out of 42 nursing students passed the state nursing board examination this year. A passing grade on the exam is required before a student is legally allowed to practice as a registered nurse.

The National Council Licensure Examination (NCLEX) is a computerized test that determines a student's ability to apply theory to practical nursing situations. Questions focus on nursing judgement and nursing practices in order to monitor critical thinking capabilities.

Dr. Shirley Toney, director of the ADN Program who was recently named dean of the GWU School of Nursing, explained that this year's ADN class was the first to graduate under raised Gardner-Webb admissions standards and new curriculum requirements. New features of the program include NCLEX review software on computer as well as intensive, post-graduation review sessions.

"The program is such that it attracts highly motivated students who recognize the need for practical, quality nursing education," Dr. Toney said. "The success our students had with the state board exam is indicative of the types of students we are enrolling and our exceptional faculty."

Interest in both the ADN and BSN programs is at an all-time high, according to Dr. Gil Blackburn, vice president and dean of academic affairs. "We're very encouraged with the number of applicants in both programs," he said. "Quite literally, we are bursting at the seams."

NURSING SCHOOL GETS DEAN

TONEY NAMED ADMINISTRATIVE HEAD

During opening convocation ceremonies in August, Dr. Chris White announced the appointment of Dr. Shirley Toney as the first dean of the Gardner-Webb School of Nursing.

Dr. Toney, a Rutherford County native who first began teaching in the Gardner-Webb nursing program in 1965, has served as director of nursing programs and chair of the two-year, associate degree in nursing (ADN) program on campus.

Dr. Gil Blackburn, vice president and dean of academic affairs, praised Dr. Toney's achievements at Gardner-Webb, noting that she has been the most instrumental figure in redefining the Gardner-Webb nursing programs into the current structure.

"We are moving toward a system of deans with our major programs, and Dr. Toney fits perfectly into the plans we have for the School of Nursing," Dr. Blackburn said. "I don't know of anyone who has more experience in all phases of nursing instruction and administration."

Dr. Blackburn added that Dr. Toney was responsible for building the current nursing faculty and developing the proposal that brought the bachelor of science (BSN) program to the Boiling Springs campus.

Dr. Toney will continue to head the ADN program while also directing all nursing programming on the Boiling Springs and Statesville campuses.

FULL-TIME ENROLLMENT SOARS

— OVER 1,200 UNDERGRADUATES REGISTERED —

The number of full-time undergraduates enrolled on the Boiling Springs campus is on the rise. As of Labor Day, Gardner-Webb had reported a record number of students who were registered for 12 or more hours in the undergraduate degree program.

A total of 1,203 were accounted for, President Chris White said, compared to 1,066 at the same time one year ago.

The jump represents a whopping 11 percent increase, something Dr. White describes as "absolutely phenomenal."

"It's one thing to rise while everyone else is rising. But we're enrolling a record number of students while many institutions are struggling to simply maintain what they've got," he said.

Over 2,400 are registered for classes for the first time in GWU history, and that number could reach 2,500 once all programs are accounted for later this fall.

Dr. White said a more focused marketing and recruiting effort has brought in not only more students, but students who are academically better qualified as well.

POSTON NAMED PRESIDENT EMERITUS

Gardner-Webb Trustees voted in May to name former school president Dr. Gene Poston President Emeritus.

Dr. Poston, who served as president of Gardner-Webb from 1961 to 1975, is the first from Gardner-Webb to be given the honorary title. Although no formal obligations are attached to the title, Dr. Poston will be involved in special events and University functions, as well as lending guidance to institutional projects and ventures.

Current GWU President Dr. Chris White noted, "In terms of honor, this is very significant. Dr. Poston was many things to many people, and it was agreed that this was the most appropriate way to recognize that."

Poston's era at Gardner-Webb was marked by progress, especially the physical growth of the campus. Among the structures that were built under his guidance are Dover and Nanney residence halls, and Lutz-Yelton residence hall.

Other notable achievements under Dr. Poston include the enlargement of the Webb Administrative Building, the purchasing of the Lindsay Building, closure of the swimming pool and construction of the tennis courts.

Proclaimed as the "Decade of Advance" when he was installed in 1961, the years that followed featured several watershed events at Gardner-Webb. The institution became a senior college in 1971, enrollment surpassed the 1,000-student plateau and a $1.5 million campaign was successfully completed. Dr. Poston brought several nationally known figures to campus as well during that time, including the Rev. Billy Graham, Paul Harvey, Colonel Sanders and Johnny Cash.

Dr. Poston came to Gardner-Webb in 1959 as a Bible professor in the Religion Department before being named president. He was the last to live in the President's House adjacent to campus, which now houses the WGWG campus radio station studios.

2 FROM GWU AMONG ELITE GROUP

Dr. Robert T. Parsons Jr., assistant to the dean of the School of Divinity at Gardner-Webb, was recently certified by the In-Service Guidance Association as a certified director of Field-Based Education. He joins GWU religion and religious education professor Dr. Alice Cullinan as having achieved certification from the Association. She was certified in 1993 as a director of ministerial education.

Parsons' and Cullinan's achievements place them among an elite group of only 20 Southern Baptist educators who have met the standards and have been certified by the In-Service Guidance Association. For certification, Dr. Parsons attended the Association's annual meeting at the Hispanic Baptist Theological Seminary in San Antonio, Texas, in August.

The In-Service Guidance Association is an organization comprised primarily of Baptist educators who are personally involved in field-based education. Its purpose is to involve undergraduate students preparing for the ministry with practical experience in a ministry setting. That experience is most often accomplished through internships, though individual seminaries and divinity schools utilize different approaches in helping students to practice what they have learned in the classroom.

Dr. Parsons directs the Mentor/Teacher Program for the School of Divinity. The program assigns students to qualified and experienced ministers who meet with the students on a regular basis to lend guidance on ministerial issues and help develop academic and spiritual skills.

Dr. Cullinan is currently chair of the Department of Religious Studies and Philosophy. She has also served as an adjunct faculty member for the School of Divinity.

Summer Commencement Features First MBA Graduates

Gardner-Webb's summer commencement ceremonies featured the school's first class of Master of Business Administration (MBA) graduates.

Among the 25 MBA graduates making history at Gardner-Webb were three unique young men — Michael Panther, Mamadi Corra and Hardin Whitaker.

Panther, who is employed by the North Carolina Division of Vocational Rehabilitation as an Independent Living counselor, is confined to a wheelchair. His job is to teach others with disabilities how to manage their personal and professional affairs.

Corra, who is employed by Plastic Oddities in nearby Shelby, has now attained both his undergraduate degree and graduate MBA degree from Gardner-Webb despite his blindness.

Whitaker is planning to attend law school at Campbell University. Amazingly, he completed the requirements for his MBA degree in only one year.

Each of the three met with rousing ovations as he crossed the platform.

The MBA Program at Gardner-Webb was begun in 1993 with a total of 70 enrolled. It is designed as a two-year course of study. However, students are free to pursue the degree at their own pace. Popularity in the program continues to be on the rise as a projected 120 students are scheduled to begin MBA classes this fall.

Jim Crawley, dean of the Gardner-Webb School of Business, delivered the keynote address for commencement.

Especially targeting the new MBA graduates, Crawley focused on the ever-changing climate in business and technology and the need to keep pace with a progressive society.

"I commend you for not only recognizing the need for new information, but for pursuing it," Crawley said, smiling at the 1995 MBA class. "The world is fast and furious, especially in business and technology. Vow to never stop learning, inside and outside the classroom."

Three days before graduation, the MBA candidates and their families were honored with a dinner in the Ritch Banquet Hall on the GWU campus. Penny Couch and Richard Furse, two graduating MBA students, addressed the audience with recollections of their two years spent pursuing the degree. Both singled out the special attention that the MBA faculty gave to students, making the long study hours and intense group sessions bearable.

Ed Hamilton, president of First National Bank of Cleveland County, was guest speaker at the dinner. He told the MBA class of graduates to place more emphasis on the knowledge they have secured rather than the degree they have attained.

"Many people have degrees hanging on their walls," Hamilton noted. "What will set you apart is how you use what you've learned and the experiences that you've gained at Gardner-Webb through its MBA Program. The sacrifice that you've made to make yourself better will pay off. I guarantee it."

Earlier this year the School of Divinity at Gardner-Webb, also begun in 1993, recognized its first class of graduates at spring graduation.

Overall, 193 students received diplomas during summer commencement, 25 constituting the historic class of MBA graduates. Bachelor of Science degrees were conferred on 131 students; MBA, 25; Master of Arts, 24; Bachelor of Arts, nine; Associate of Arts, three; Master of Arts in Christian Ministry, one.

The first MBA graduating class was honored with a dinner in Ritch Banquet Hall on campus.

University Breaks New Ground With Weekend Classes

A University must be doing something right when its students want to spend their weekends taking classes. That's the situation Gardner-Webb's Master of Business Administration (MBA) Program found itself in this summer.

In an experimental move, Gardner-Webb administrators and School of Business officials in June decided to offer an MBA course on Saturdays due to suggestions from students. And the idea caught on. So much so that additional weekend courses were scheduled for the current fall semester.

"To the best of my knowledge, it's the first time Gardner-Webb has ever offered Saturday classes," said Dr. Keith Griggs, director of the MBA Program. "It's more work for the professors, but at the same time it's an encouraging sign that we're offering a program that people would want to spend their weekends being a part of. In other words, it's a good problem to have."

Dr. Griggs said a group of working professionals enrolled in the MBA Program approached him and the faculty about the possibility of Saturday classes because of the difficulty in driving to campus from out of town after work for night classes. In particular, two students from Hickory noted that getting off work at 5 p.m. and being at Gardner-Webb for 6 p.m. classes was becoming hard to accomplish.

"Business people in our program are working during the week but often have their Saturdays free," he explained. "So they said if they could take classes on the weekends, they wouldn't miss as many and would in turn do better in those classes."

Gardner-Webb officials noted that the University's size was an advantage in the rapid implementation of the idea since the decision did not have to make its way through the bureaucracy of a larger institution.

Eventually, Dr. Griggs said, he would like to see a comprehensive weekend program in place. It's a long-term goal, but positive response so far from students about the Saturday offerings has been heartening.

In North Carolina, Gardner-Webb becomes only the fifth MBA program out of 20 that has provided weekend classes to its students. That's the third piece of good news the program has received recently. In addition to Gardner-Webb graduating its first MBA class during summer commencement, Dr. Griggs said preliminary enrollment figures for the program indicate as many as 120 students could be taking MBA classes this fall.

The MBA Program at Gardner-Webb was begun in 1993 with 75 students enrolled.

Four local high school graduates have been awarded the Joseph B. Freeman Jr. Education Scholarship for 1995.

The scholarship is given to area students whose academic ability and motivation are good, but whose personal circumstances or financial situations make attending college difficult.

Rashonda Mintz and Shannon Lea Jones of Shelby High School, Tracy Dawn Costner of Burns High School and Nicole Antonnette Williams of Kings Mountain High School are this year's recipients.

The scholarship is named for the late Joseph B. Freeman Jr., a longtime Cleveland County businessman who was formerly the head of the Interstate Johnson Lane office in Shelby. Recipients were nominated by their high school principals and approved by the respective superintendents.

Under the guidelines of the scholarship fund, at least half of the recipients will attend Gardner-Webb University. Rashonda Mintz and Tracy Dawn Costner are attending Gardner-Webb this fall. The University has agreed to match, dollar for dollar, the amount awarded to those recipients provided they are enrolled full-time in the undergraduate program. The fund is used to provide tuition, housing and meals for the students.

Ed Hamilton, president of First National Bank of Cleveland County, was one of many local business leaders who helped organize the scholarship fund. He explained,

"This is for those students who want to attend college but can't secure the necessary assistance to do so. It's for those who are about to fall through the cracks."

GWU GOAL Program Expands To Rutherford County

Interest in Gardner-Webb's GOAL Program is growing, and so is the program itself.

GOAL (Greater Opportunities for Adult Learners) has added a 14th satellite location. Now adults in neighboring Rutherford County with at least two years of college can complete their four-year degree on the Isothermal Community College campus in Spindale.

Students will be able to earn an associate's degree at Isothermal and then continue their studies in three undergraduate majors – business administration, accounting and human services.

Helen Lowery, chair of the business department at Isothermal, first approached Gardner-Webb about offering the program. The University is close to neighboring Rutherford County and the classes serve to increase the educational opportunities available to their students.

GWU President Chris White decided that if enough interest was shown in the Rutherford County site, plans could begin immediately to set up classes. An information session was scheduled and more than 60 prospective students came calling. By second summer school term in late June, two classes were in full swing at Isothermal and calls for information about future enrollment were pouring in.

Both Gardner-Webb and Isothermal hope to benefit from the arrangement. Isothermal can now offer the possibility of completing four-year degrees on their campus, an attractive proposition to students who had previously only had the option of an associate's degree in Rutherford County.

Gardner-Webb hopes that the relationship with neighboring county residents will encourage the Isothermal GOAL students to become more involved with the main campus in Boiling Springs. Spindale, where the site is located, is approximately 25 minutes from Gardner-Webb.

"GOAL classes run in cycles," said Evan Thompson, dean of Special Studies at GWU. "If a student needs a class, but can't take it during a semester when it's offered at Isothermal, the proximity of the schools allows the student to make a short drive to the University campus for that class, if necessary."

Courses at Isothermal will be held on Tuesdays and Thursdays, whereas GOAL courses on the GWU campus are on Mondays and Wednesdays. Thompson adds that due to the short distance between schools, Isothermal GOAL students will also be fortunate to have full-time GWU faculty commuting to Rutherford County to teach the majority of courses there.

"It's a good situation all around," he said. "We haven't had a GOAL site in Rutherford County in nearly 10 years. It's obvious that there are a lot of people in that area eager to take advantage of the opportunity to obtain a Gardner-Webb degree."

The program targets adult students, especially those who delayed entering college because of full-time employment or raising a family. For more information about the GOAL Program, please call (704) 434-4625.

GWU Opening Doors To Foreign Markets

Most area businesses know foreign markets exist. However, many don't know how to enter or where to look for them.

Thus, the new World Trade Resource Center Organization (WTRCO) at Gardner-Webb was developed this summer to help regional companies export their products.

The WTRCO is a joint venture of the University with area chambers of commerce, educational institutions and various trade groups. Its mission is to help local businesses gain access to foreign markets and exporting possibilities.

"A fear of the unknown prevents many firms from exporting. The purpose of this new organization is to act as a counselor and help ease the transition into a foreign market," said Dr. Anthony Negbenebor, associate professor of economics at GWU.

Dr. Negbenebor is an organizing member of the WTRCO who noted that only one out of every nine North Carolina businesses export their products, indicating the need for growth.

Although businesses don't take full advantage of these markets, their efforts have improved, according to Jim Crawley, dean of the GWU School of Business and also an organizing member of the WTRCO.

"Since 1994 North Carolina exports have totaled more than $13.7 billion, an increase of almost $4 billion from 1993," Crawley said. "The trend is there, and we hope this new organization can help many businesses take advantage of that trend."

The center provides information about negotiating with international offices, meeting foreign product and environmental standards, shipping and payments, expediting documentation and solving legal, tax and financing problems.

In addition to Gardner-Webb assistance, prominent leaders from area counties are lending their experience and resources to novice exporters who are just beginning to step into the international business world. Workshops, seminars and information materials are also provided for those seeking guidance.

Dr. Negbenebor added that newcomers can learn many of the essentials needed to create exporting possibilities. Trade issues within a foreign market, global investment issues, key contact sources, possible corporate sponsors and inexpensive advertising ideas are but a few of the topics that can be covered upon request.

The WTRCO is an offspring of the University's World Trade Resource Center, which is housed in the Dover Memorial Library on campus and provides state-of-the-art computer and informational capabilities for international business. Features such as an export hotline and economic bulletin board are available to keep users abreast of the latest developments in foreign markets.

Also available for those seeking assistance through the WTRCO is MEXNET, a 24-hour computer service that provides key information for American businesses who are making contact with prospective Mexican business outlets.

Anyone interested in learning how their business can expand into exporting and international business is encouraged to call (704) 434-4385 for more information.

Mona Smith joined the Math Department as a part-time instructor.

Dr. Gil Blackburn, vice president and dean of academic affairs, said, "In terms of quality, this group as a whole is as good or better than any group we have ever employed. Each new member comes highly recommended."

School Names New Vice President and Student Dean

Gardner-Webb named G. Bruce Moore of Chowan College as its new vice president and dean of student development. He officially began work on July 17. Moore fills the position formerly held by Jerome Scott, who passed away in May.

Moore, 47, has served the last five years as vice president for student development and dean of students at Chowan, which is located in Murfreesboro, N.C. His responsibilities there included the supervision of campus police and safety, residence life, student discipline, student health services, career development, campus ministry, counseling services, student government, summer camps and conferences and student activities, among others.

Administration officials at Gardner-Webb say that Moore was highly recommended, noting the excellent rapport with students he has maintained through his previous positions. Provost and Senior Vice President Dr. Frank Bonner said of Moore, "We feel that Bruce has a genuine concern and love for college students and their well-being. As a person and administrator, he has shown strong character and admirable leadership abilities."

University President Dr. Chris White explained that Moore and Jerome Scott were close friends before Scott's death, colleagues who shared similar ideals and concerns for student development.

"Bruce is definitely cut out of the same mold as Jerome. Through their association, Bruce learned a great deal about Gardner-Webb," White said. "Bruce relates exceedingly well to students – just like Jerome. We expect Bruce to pick up where Jerome left off."

Moore has taught religion and philosophy at Chowan and Campbell, and has been an adjunct faculty member of Christian education at Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary.

Moore's wife, Brenda, has served previously as a Chapter I Reading Specialist with Southampton County Schools in Virginia. They have two children, Jennifer, who is a recent graduate of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, and Michael, who attends Hargrave Military Academy.

SCOTT'S LEGACY REMEMBERED

Gardner-Webb, on Sept. 5th took a day to use the memory of Jerome Scott to inspire students to volunteer their time in the same spirit he so often did.

Scott, the former Gardner-Webb vice president and dean of student development who passed away suddenly in May, was a visible and dedicated community leader who generously gave of his time for community and civic-minded projects.

Three events on Sept. 5th played upon that theme. First, a tree was dedicated behind the Dover Campus Center in Scott's memory. Following the dedication, the weekly DIMENSIONS program centered on the importance of community service. In the afternoon a Student Volunteer Fair gave students the opportunity to talk with local non-profit agencies in need of volunteers.

"We have grieved for Jerome and now we will utilize his memory in a positive way," said President Chris White at the tree dedication, which attracted a crowd of over 300 staff and students. "What Jerome stood for was service to his fellow man. We can remember him best by volunteering as he would have."

Campus Minister Burdette Robinson, organizer of the day's events, said an impressive turnout at the volunteer fair was partly attributed to the inspirational message delivered at DIMENSIONS.

"The service used Jerome's life as an example to give a strong challenge to the students," Robinson said. "Many took the challenge and made a commitment to community service."

Robinson said some 250 students pledged their time to the agency of their choice.

Dr. White noted, "For many of the students, this was a day to express their appreciation for Jerome in a very tangible way."

UNDER THE LIGHTS

NIGHT GAMES HIGHLIGHT FOOTBALL SCHEDULE

Gardner-Webb home football games this fall will feature something very different for Runnin' Bulldog fans. A new state-of-the-art lighting system installed this summer at Spangler Stadium means the team will play three evening contests, with games at 7 o'clock, this season.

Games versus Newberry, Sept. 23; Carson-Newman, Oct. 21; and Elon, Oct. 28 will all take place under the lights. Night games have not occurred at Gardner-Webb since the mid-1980s, when the field last featured lights. Deterioration of the wooden poles that supported those lights caused their removal.

Made possible by a gift from an anonymous donor, the new lighting system is unequaled by any other in the South Atlantic Conference, according to Eddie Holbrook, GWU assistant to the president for athletics. Excitement, he said, has been building among Bulldog supporters.

"Nighttime provides a more pleasant atmosphere for football, partly because of milder weather and partly because fans aren't rushed to get here, especially those coming from out of town," Holbrook explained. "Plus, we feel it gives families the chance to attend our games together at a more enjoyable time."

Installation of the lights was coordinated by Speed Williams of Williams Electric in Shelby. Williams said the Gardner-Webb system features the newest and best lighting technology available.

"The use of patented aluminum reflectors takes light that would be wasted upward and redirects that light down on the playing surface," he explained. "Four poles with 27 light fixtures per pole will give Gardner-

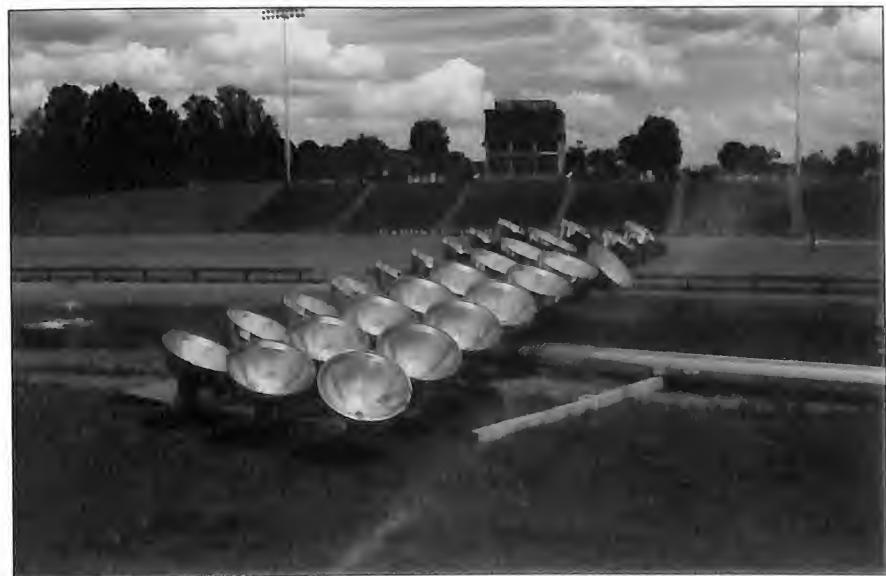

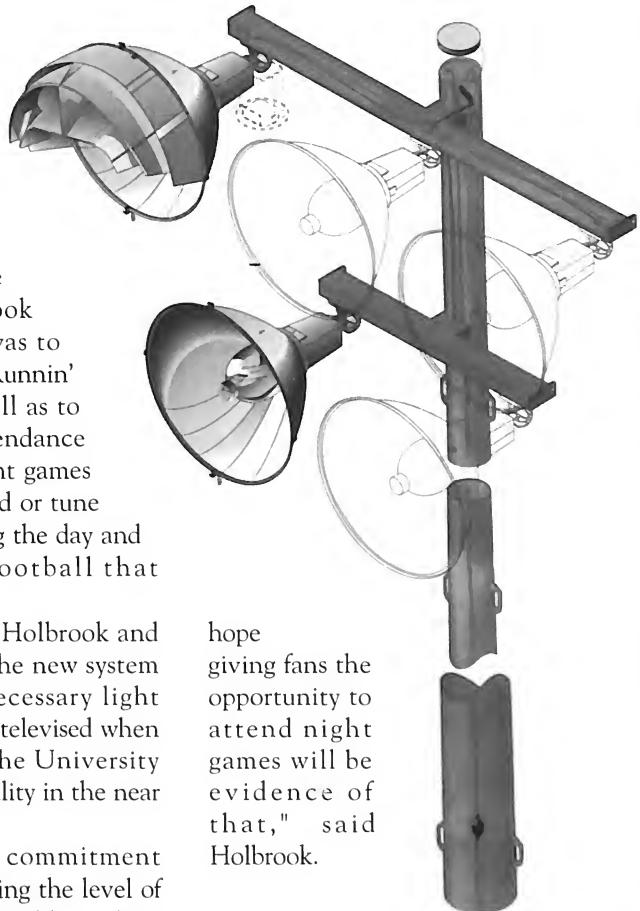

Webb the absolute best-lighted field in the area."

Returning night football to Gardner-Webb was a goal established by the Executive Committee of the Bulldog Club, Holbrook added. The purpose was to heighten the image of Runnin' Bulldog football as well as to generate increased attendance at home contests. Night games also allow fans to attend or tune into other games during the day and then enjoy GWU football that evening.

Additionally, both Holbrook and Williams agreed that the new system would provide the necessary light needed for games to be televised when possible, something the University hopes will become a reality in the near future.

"We have made a commitment across the board to raising the level of athletics at Gardner-Webb, and we hope giving fans the opportunity to attend night games will be evidence of that," said Holbrook.

TERRY GUESS: A THREAT TO OPPONENTS

There is good news and bad news that comes with having an All-American on your football team. The good news is he can win games for every time he touches the ball. The bad news is other teams try fervently to prevent him from touching the ball.

Such is the case with Runnin' Bulldog return specialist and wide receiver Terry Guess.

Guess finished first in NCAA Division Two statistics last season in Punt Returns with an average of 19.5 per return. He has been clocked at 4.23 in the 40-yard dash and set an NCAA Division Two Record with six kick returns for scores in 1994. He tied the NCAA Division Two record for Runbacks for Scores set by Anthony Leonard of Virginia Union in 1974 (2 interceptions returned for touchdowns, 2 punt and 2 kickoff returns for touchdowns).

Plus, he tied the NCAA Record for Longest Kickoff Return when he collected a 100+ yard touchdown romp versus Carson-Newman College. And, he fell one short of the NCAA Division Two season record for Punt Returns for TDS with three. Amazingly, he had three more erased due to penalties last year. He returned at least one kick for a score in each of his first four collegiate contests.

The Orangeburg, S.C., native is such an incredible threat on the field that most opponents during the latter part of last season chose to kick the ball out of bounds rather than take a chance on Guess returning a punt or kickoff for a touchdown.

At 6-2, 205 lbs., Guess has professional football scouts raving about his potential. A junior college transfer in his second year with the Bulldogs, he will likely be a hot commodity when the pros come calling. The Gardner-Webb Sports Information Office has been flooded with requests from NFL teams for information about Guess, and representatives from those teams can often be spotted watching him from the sidelines during practice and the press box on game days.

Head Coach Woody Fish admits Guess is unique. "Terry has skills like nobody we've seen in quite a while. He adds another dimension to our club, one that is virtually impossible to stop. He leaves the fans, his teammates and coaches in awe of his ability."

Guess, who averaged 14.7 yards every time he touched the ball last year while scoring 70 points on 11 TDs and 2 two-point conversions, will be a key player to watch as he leads the Runnin' Bulldogs back to glory in 1995.

BASKETBALL COACH RESIGNS, REPLACEMENT NAMED

Bobby Lutz, who was named GWU head men's basketball coach in April after a successful stint with Pfeiffer College, resigned the position in June to assume assistant's duties at UNC-Charlotte. After an extensive search, Gardner-Webb announced in July that Rick Scruggs from Milligan College in Tennessee would replace Lutz as coach of the men's program.

Scruggs comes highly recommended to Gardner-Webb as an enthusiastic motivator who has met with quick success during his nine-year career as a head coach. He has averaged approximately 20 wins per season over that span and this past year he led Milligan to its first NAIA National Tournament appearance.

Lutz explained that the lure of coaching at his alma mater was too great to pass up. He stated that although his stay at Gardner-Webb was brief, he had confidence the program was headed in a positive direction.

"The people at Gardner-Webb treated me with class and respect, and I have nothing but fond memories and impressions of the school," Lutz said. "Gardner-Webb has made a commitment to raise the level of its basketball program and good things are sure to happen very soon. The head coach's position at GWU is a very attractive one. I wish the school and the program the very best."

Scruggs comes to the University as an exciting coach whose teams have featured a high-scoring, up-tempo style of play. Included among his supporters is Georgia Tech Head Coach Bobby Cremins, who hails Scruggs as an excellent recruiter who relates exceptionally well to his players.

At Milligan College, which is located in Johnson City, Tenn., Scruggs took but one year to turn the program into a national contender. In the 1994-95 season, he posted a 24-12 won-loss record in leading the school to its most successful season ever.

Eddie Holbrook, who serves as GWU assistant to the president for athletics, said Scruggs' impressive record, philosophies and demeanor made him the leading candidate for the position.

"Rick is a conscientious person who not only promotes his basketball program, but his school as well," Holbrook explained. "Fans will enjoy his style of play and the players will appreciate the relationship Coach Scruggs has with them."

Holbrook and Athletic Director Ozzie McFarland both said that an impressive pool of candidates had expressed interest in the position.

"We considered a number of genuinely interested applicants from essentially every level of competition during our search," McFarland noted. "Coach Scruggs, however, seemed to be a perfect fit for us."

Of Lutz' departure, Holbrook said he understood the attraction to the UNCC job. "Bobby told us there were very few positions he would leave Gardner-Webb for – but if an offer ever came from UNCC, he would have to strongly consider it. Coaching at your alma mater is a special feeling, and that had been a goal of Bobby's throughout his career. The opportunity presented itself and he felt he should take advantage of it."

Both Holbrook and McFarland said the program has made a very smooth transition as a result of Scruggs' hiring. The basketball team is scheduled to begin play on Nov. 17 versus Newberry.

Alpha Chi Alum? Rejoin!

Gardner-Webb alumni who were undergraduate members of Alpha Chi are invited to renew their relationship with Alpha Chi as active alumni members.

The national college honor scholarship society voted at its 1995 convention in Atlanta to create the new alumni status, which will allow alums to receive Alpha Chi publications and participate in other society activities.

A new issue of the annual society journal, The Recorder, is set to begin in early 1996 with a focus on scholarly, but non-technical, topics of interest to alumni. The existing fall Recorder issue will remain devoted to undergraduate research. Alumni will also receive three newsletters annually.

Regional and national conventions will be open to alumni members, who will be encouraged to form or join alumni chapters or to participate in campus charter activities in their areas.

The North Carolina Zeta chapter of Alpha Chi at GWU was chartered in 1972. Its current official faculty sponsor is Dr. Robert E. Morgan.

Alpha Chi Executive Director Dennis Organ said, "We have ... had students express interest in continuing their relationship with Alpha Chi beyond graduation. Other honor societies have similar programs for alumni, and we're glad we can now offer those opportunities to our thousands of members."

Interested Alpha Chi members who graduated before 1994 may contact the national office at Harding University, Box 2249, Searcy, Arkansas 72149-0001. For more information, you may call 1-800-477-4225. The annual fee for active alumni status is $15.

Homecoming Activities Slated for Oct. 6-7

Homecoming at Gardner-Webb is always full of surprises and fanfare. This year will be no different. Oct. 6 and 7 promise to be two days of unforgettable fun for GWU alumni of all ages.

"Bulldog Bonanza" provides the setting for a more casual atmosphere for this year's homecoming events. On Friday, Oct. 6, a shorter program and bigger banquet will allow alums to dance the night away to the sounds of the ever-popular group Ocean Boulevard. Child care will once again be provided.

Saturday, Oct. 7, will be a day like no other. Special reunions are scheduled for the morning before the football contest against rival Lenoir-Rhyne at 1:30 p.m. The Runnin' Bulldogs are loaded with talent this year and licking their chops for what will surely be one of the most exciting games of the season.

Lunch will feature Cleveland County's finest barbecue with all the fixings. Also on Saturday you'll be entertained with the Homecoming parade, a soccer tournament and the music of another favorite group, Bandana.

Non-stop activity is scheduled all weekend for enjoyment. And, as always, class reunions will be taking place all weekend long to give alumni a chance to catch up with one another.

Mark your calendars now! This will be a Homecoming you can't afford to miss.

Dear Fellow Alumni:

It was a record year in 1994-95 for our Annual Fund at Gardner-Webb University! The new year holds even greater promise and we challenge you to spread the word among other GWU alumni and friends that their gifts will make a difference. Increased participation in the Annual Fund is crucial to the life of the University.

If you were a part of our drive to raise unrestricted dollars for the University, you can take great pride in knowing that your contribution helped maintain the very basics of our operating budget. Unrestricted gifts are used just like tuition, helping to pay for the actual cost of operating the University. The entire Gardner-Webb community – faculty, staff, students and facilities – benefits from an unrestricted contribution.

Your generosity allows our students the opportunity to experience the high-quality, Christian education they seek when they choose to attend Gardner-Webb. This institution continues to grow and excel. As alumni and caring friends of this great school, we must help maintain that level of excellence. We must provide the best education possible for our students, for they are our future!

Please consider your pledge prayerfully and respond positively when contacted during our phonathon this fall. The Annual Fund is the way most of our alumni and friends can make their single biggest impact on Gardner-Webb University.

Your participation is needed. You can make a difference.

Deciding to Give Is Easy... Deciding How to Give Can Be

Giving to Gardner-Webb University is a significant decision that our alumni and friends make regularly. For a person who has already decided to support the University financially, the only remaining question is "How should I make my gift?" or "Should I give appreciated stock, real estate, cash or something else?" Those are very important questions. The answers depend heavily on each person's situation. In the Office of Gift Planning we help donors figure out the "how" part of making a gift. We have discovered that it often pays to give.

Through proper planning, Gardner-Webb alumni and friends can fulfill their desire to provide for the future of the University. Donors can even improve their own current financial situation as outlined above. Retirement planning and tax planning are both positively affected by making charitable gifts.

If you would like more information about Gift Planning or Estate Planning, please contact Don Durham at (704) 434-4244.

DEATHS

Hugh Herbert "Pete" Martin of Connelly Springs passed away Dec. 23, 1994.

MAGGIE MOORE GOODWIN

— APRIL 7, 1906 - AUGUST 10, 1995 —

Maggie Moore Goodwin, a dorm mother and unforgettable figure at Gardner-Webb for 18 years, passed away in August. She was 89.

Known by a countless number of University alumni and friends simply as "Mom", Mrs. Goodwin served Gardner-Webb from 1956 until 1974. She began her employment as resident counselor for men, later becoming head counselor at Gardner-Webb under the direction of Ruth Kiser, who then served as dean of women.

The Rev. Charles W. "Buddy" Freeman, current Gardner-Webb dean of admissions and financial planning, was a student at Gardner-Webb from 1960-62 and became a longtime acquaintance of Mrs.

Goodwin's — she often referred to him as "one of her special boys." The Rev. Freeman presided over her funeral in Greenville, S.C., along with Dr. Robert Cooper of the Martha Franks Baptist Retirement Center in Laurens, S.C., where Mom Goodwin lived the final nine years of her life.

"She absolutely loved students," the Rev. Freeman recollects. "I don't think I've met a person more passionate about her job, or more suited for her job, than Mom Goodwin."

To the thousands of young men and women who came to Gardner-Webb under her watchful eye, Mrs. Goodwin was small in stature but tall in her dedication to youth. One former student recalls that Mom Goodwin was quite concerned with his need for a healthy diet. He would bring food back to campus from his weekend job at a grocery store and she would prepare it for him.

She was the mother-in-law of former Gardner-Webb director of communications and current trustee Dr. John Roberts, who now serves as editor of The Baptist Courier in Greenville, S.C.

"Her apartment in Stroup Dormitory became home to many freshmen with a touch of homesickness," Roberts wrote in memory of Mrs. Goodwin. "Her door was always open to young women wanting to talk about life, to young men wanting advice on how to get a date, to students worried about grades, or bills, or problems at school or at home."

Mrs. Goodwin is survived by three children, 12 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren. The family has stated that memorials can be made to Gardner-Webb University, attn: Office of University Relations, Boiling Springs, N.C. 28017.

ANNUAL REPORT

Dear Friends:

It is you, fine friends and supporters of Christian higher education, who are the heart of Gardner-Webb University.

On the following pages we have listed, one by one, the names of each individual, church, business, foundation and organization who have so generously shared with Gardner-Webb in the past year.

Behind each name is a different story — whether an alum wishing to boost the image of his fine alma mater; a business or corporate friend who would like to ensure the future of tomorrow's leaders; or a church wishing to aid in this institution's deep conviction of educating students in a Christian environment.

Whatever the reason, we thank you. Whatever the need, you have helped with the answer.

The information included in this, our Annual Report, reflects giving records from July 1, 1994, to June 30, 1995. We have made a diligent effort to be accurate in our presentation of names and information. If we have erred, please forgive us, yet inform us. We always need your help and understanding in such matters.

Respectfully,

Roman numerals denote gifts made through the Gardner-Webb University Annual Fund. The Annual Fund is the unrestricted money raised each year through gifts from alumni, trustees, parents, friends, corporations and foundations. Gifts to the Annual Fund secure Gardner-Webb's financial stability by providing the essential support that the University needs to balance its operating budget and to meet the expanding requirements of the academic program.

Gifts of $100 or more qualify contributors for membership in a Gift Recognition Club. Each giving level is indicated with a Roman numeral.

Gift Recognition Club memberships have been divided into the following categories:

I	Legacy Society	$10,000
II	Trustee Society	$5,000
III	President's Club	$2,500
IV	University Club	$1,000
V	Benefactor	$500
VI	Patron	$250
VII	Centurion	$100
VIII	Contributor

Gifts under $100 are also needed and encouraged.

For more information about the Gardner-Webb University Annual Fund, please contact Rusty Patterson at (704) 434-4259.

Whereas only Annual Fund gifts were designated by giving levels in this Annual Report, the 1996 issue will assign giving levels to each and every gift (including Annual Fund gifts) made to the University.
